About this collection

Collection provided by Cleveland Public Library

This collection of Cleveland images represents photographs dating from the late nineteenth century through the 1960s. Included are historic views of Cleveland's neighborhoods, downtown, and industrial areas. Of special interest are 1930s industrial scenes by Arthur Gray, and 1950s photos of African American life in Cleveland's Scoville neighborhood by award-winning photographer Jasper Wood. A series of photographs of the Hough neighborhood were taken by Cleveland City government as documentation for an urban renewal program in the 1960s.

Description

East Texas oilman Rogers Lacy decided in 1945 to build a grand hotel in downtown Dallas. He selected famed architect Frank Lloyd Wright the following year to design it. The design of the Rogers Lacy hotel was unveiled in June of 1947 and was scheduled to cost about $12 million, a huge amount for a building at that time.

- Search
- Links to other platforms (ultimately to dynamic cross-platform results)
- Imposed hierarchy over disparate collections
- Not a place to duplicate effort of other systems (Via, CDM, etc.)
- Uses SharePoint allowing for Mission & Values control
